FRIDAY, MAY 30, 1913

A bill has been introduced in congress to abrogate the Taft order placing something like 35,000 postmasters under the civil service, it being claimed that "the order evaded the spirit of the law."

Under an order just issued by Postmaster General Burleson the special 10-cent registry stamp will not be used after the present supply is exhausted. Ordinary stamps will be used in the registry service.

A bill has been introduced in the house branch of congress providing for the payment of war pensions monthly instead of quarterly. It is contended that since the branch pension agencies have been discontinued and the work centralized in Washington, it is just as economical to pay pensions monthly as once every three months. Civil war veterans are dying at the rate of 4000 a month.

Mr. Whitacre for the United States Senate.

(Lisbon Patriot.)

The Patriot is today publishing a remarkable statement of the tariff controversy by Congressman John J. Whitacre, who represents this district in the national house of representatives. Ever since he has been in public life he has by sheer ability, unexampled courage and practical common sense impressed upon the people of the district and of the nation. Since the revision of the tariff in readjusting the cost of living and the settlement of the industrial situation in the country, Mr. Whitacre has stood head and shoulders above his fellows in the fight. He has had opinions and the courage to express them. He has shown that he can be fair to all classes—his enemies and his friends. The East Liverpool incident is one in point. The potteries of that city looked upon Mr. Whitacre as a menace. They have had experience with him in the past. He has been once enough with him to discover that he is only fair and is giving everyone a square deal. He fought just as hard to get them a fair hearing on the tariff as he has fought to attain their ends desired. He was not wanting anything but the truth, and a hearing would bring out the truth. The potteries, equally fair, sent him a resolution of thanks.

This is mentioned just as an incident. What is meant to say, is that some such man as Mr. Whitacre is needed in the United States senate. When Mr. Burton retires, Whitacre is the logical man for his successor. He would be a strong advocate of the principles of democracy in the upper house. President Wilson's administration would thus be strengthened. He might not suit some of the Ohio politicians, but he would suit the people.

The Patriot is for Mr. Whitacre for the United States senate. He ought to get there by sheer force and ability.
